

Overview

Jewish Galicia and Bukovina Organization (JGB) is a non-profit organization dedicated to the documentation, preservation and educational dissemination of the history and rich cultural heritage of the Jewish communities of Galicia and Bukovina.

Galicia and Bukovina were important Jewish centers as far back as the 13th Century and were home to over one million Jews, with unique cultural characteristics and a vibrant intellectual and spiritual life. These regions produced prominent Jewish thinkers, rabbis, writers, artists and public activists, who created influential texts and institutions that have had a long-lasting impact on the Jewish world. The Torah scholars and Jewish intellectuals of Galicia and Bukovina were known for their tolerance and openness towards modernity, while being firmly rooted in Jewish tradition and learning.

This thriving Jewish world was wiped out in the Holocaust. Its outstanding cultural accomplishments are not widely known today: they have been insufficiently documented and inadequately researched by academic scholars.

JGB Organization aims in its work to promote documentation, academic research and dissemination of the Jewish heritage of Galicia and Bukovina. To this end, we are engaged in four major areas of activity:

- Supporting academic centers for research and studies of Jewish history and legacy of Galicia and Bukovina
- Developing online free of charge databases which present the historical, cultural and rabbinic heritage of Galician and Bukovinian Jewish communities
- Annual fieldwork teams documenting the physical remnants of Jewish life in Galicia and Bukovina.
- Extending fellowships to students who are researching relevant topics for advanced degrees.

The forerunner of Jewish Galicia and Bukovina, known as The Institute for Commemoration of Galician Jewry, was founded in 1987 by Rabbi Meir Wunder, who dedicated several decades to compiling the seven-volume Encyclopedia of Galician Sages. In 2008, the Ludmer Fund was launched, which began to work with Hebrew University of Jerusalem and several other universities in Israel and abroad with the goal of reviving the unique heritage of Jewish Galicia and Bukovina as vital to the broader understanding of Jewish history in modern times, and bringing to life the memory of those Jewish communities that have perished. In 2011, the Ludmer Fund and the Institute for Commemoration of Galician Jewry joined forces, and became the "Jewish Galicia and Bukovina" Organization.

At first we focused our research on archival documents and personal testimonies describing the life of the Jews in Galicia. We also began to document the physical remains of the communities – communal buildings, Jewish cemeteries, synagogues, and other structures. So far we have sent eleven teams of researchers and students from Israel and abroad to examine and document physical sites in numerous cities in Galicia and Bukovina which once had big Jewish communities (See more here...).

In order to promote academic research of Galician and Bukovinian Jewry JGB has established three educational and academic centers in the University of Haifa, Tel-Aviv University and Herzog College. For a number of reasons Galicia and Bukovina Jewry have been researched less in comparison to other areas in Eastern-Europe. Due to this, our association offers fellowships to doctoral and post-doctoral students from Israel and abroad for research projects connected to Jewish history in this region . We see great importance on awarding these fellowships and seek to establish a leading role for Israeli academia in studying these communities (see here: fellowships in Israel and fellowships in Ukraine).

Published on JEWISH GALICIA & BUKOVINA (<http://jgaliciabukovina.net>)

This website was established as part of our aim to set up a comprehensive database of primary materials pertaining to the Jewish communities of Galicia and Bukovina. While the database meets exacting academic standards, it also provides the general public with online access to a wide array of cultural and historical materials in a comprehensible format.

We are committed to seeing that the rich Jewish culture that once flourished in the region will be remembered and passed on to future generations in Israel and throughout the world.

Finally, Jewish Galicia and Bukovina, through its research and dissemination efforts, is preserving the spiritual heritage of Galician and Bukovinian Jewry for posterity and in doing so is engaging hundreds of the descendants of former residents of Galicia and Bukovina in a search for their cultural and historical roots.

If you have historical materials of any kind about the Jews of Galicia and Bukovina and would be willing to share them with us please contact us.

We invite you to register to get our newsletter and become a friend of Galicia and Bukovina. Your contribution will be highly appreciated and will help us expand our fields of activity and advance the research on the Jews of Galicia and Bukovina.
